احتمال ریزش قیمت ها چقدر است؟

تورم شبیه غول چراغ جادو است. آزادی هر دو برای نوع بشر زیان بار است. تورم امکان استفاده از نیروی عقلانیت را محدود می کند و احتمال اشتباه در تصمیم گیری ها را افزایش می دهد. تورم حتی مدیران و سیاست گذاران را گمراه می کند.

توزیع مسئولیت ها در جامعه باعث می شود تحلیل بسیاری از مدیران مبتنی بر بازارهای انفرادی باشد. به عبارت دیگر، آنها تورم را به افزایش قیمت کالاهای منفرد تجزیه و تحولات هر بازار را به صورت جداگانه تحلیل می کنند. این رویکرد، به نسخه هایی متفاوت برای هر بازار ختم می شود: برای بازار خودرو قرعه کشی، برای کالاهای اساسی تفتیش انبارها، برای ارز نرخ های دولتی و برای مسکن سقف رشد اجاره تجویز می شود. اما این اقدامات نه تنها... ادامه در صفحه ۲

Most of Iran's exports go to Iraqi Kurdistan region; official

"Most of Iran's exports go to the Iraqi Kurdistan region, not the central government," the Iranian official told ILNA.

Speaking to ILNA news agency, the Spokesman of Iranian Oil, Gas and Petrochemical Products Exporters' Union (OPEX) Seyed Hamid Hosseini says Iraq central government has the refining capacity for 700,000 barrels of oil per day and it has set standards of euro 4 and 5 for imports of the oil products but it is not ready to purchase oil products from Iran due to the U.S. sanctions.

The Iranian official said that in the first half of the year, Iran's exports to Iraq were around $2.9b while the figure in the first five months of the year was just $560m but after reopening of borders, exports to Iraq were accelerated and the figure rose significantly.

He added that gasoline topped Iran's exports to Iraqi Kurdistan and electricity, construction materials, foodstuff, chemicals, petrochemicals and industrial items were Iran's other major exports to Iraq.

The Spokesman then elaborated why the major part of Iran's exports are to Iraqi Kurdistan rather than the central government, saying that Iraq oil ministry is not ready to buy Iran oil products due to sanctions and it buys its needed products from India and Europe but this year it has decreased its imports of oil products due to the Coronavirus pandemic and currently the central government of Iraq has daily refining capacity of 700,000 and it has set standards of euro 4 and 5 for imported oil products.

Hosseini added that so Iraqi Kurdistan is Iran's major customer, adding that the major exports in the past ten years have been destined to Iraqi Kurdistan and the trade with the central government has been insignificant.

He added that Iraqi Kurdistan has its own laws and regulations and regarding the sanctions, it has received some waivers and acts based on them. He reiterated that Iraqi Kurdistan does not usually ban imports of goods but it regulates its trade policies with levying tariffs and whenever it decides to stop import of some goods, it increases the tariffs and it does not slap ban like the central government of Iraq.

Hosseini reiterated that the gasoline which is produce in Iran is with octane ratings of 87 and 91, and it is the most high quality gasoline in the region.

He said most of euro 4 gasoline produced domestically and in Persian Gulf Star Refinery is consumed domestically, and one cannot find gasoline with such a quality in the region and no country but India produces gasoline with euro 4 and 5 standards.

Iran oil industry; from sanctions to full-scale "economic war"

Although Iran's oil industry has been under sanctions since the victory of the Islamic Revolution in 1979, the current US pressure on Iran is not mere sanctions. It can be rather regarded as a full-scale economic war which aims to fully stop the country's oil exports and access to petrodollars.

Despite the long record of oil sanctions on Iran, pressure on the country's oil exports has never been so much tough and systematic.

President Hassan Rouhani said on Wednesday that what happened over the past three years was an "economic war".

He made the remarks in reaction to some of his critics who argue that sanctions are not something new and Iran has always been under pressure since the triumph of the Islamic Revolution.

In the past, Iran used to be under sanctions, not an "economic war", the president said, adding that at those times Iran was able to export at least one million bpd of oil.

Since he came to power in 2013, President Rouhani always sought a compromise solution so that "both the centrifuges and the wheel of everyday life of the people to turn around" in an effort to reduce the pressure of sanctions which were imposed on Iran due to the US hostility under the guise of the so-called concerns over Iran civilian nuclear program.

To this end, the Iranian government engaged in marathon talks with six world powers (the five permanent members of the UN Security Council and Germany) which led to a landmark nuclear deal in 2015 under which Iran had to scale down its nuclear activities in exchange for lifting of all the international sanctions on the country. Few days after the accord was signed, the UN Security Council, in a unanimous vote, lifted all the sanctions imposed on Iran.

The nuclear deal and the lifting of sanctions helped Iran to regain its oil market soon and traditional customers of the county began buying oil from Iran so that the country's oil revenues rose to $55.7 billion over the first year following signature of the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action.

However, in 2018, the US new president, in a move contrary to international law, announced US unilateral withdrawal from Iran nuclear deal which was signed by his predecessor. In total disregard of the UN Security Council Resolution 2231, Trump at the same time imposed unilateral sanctions on Iran in a bid to slash Iran's oil revenues to zero.

Iranian Vice-President Eshaq Jahangiri has announced that Iran which used to have some $100 billion of oil revenues annually, exported only $8 billion worth of oil last year due to the US unilateral sanctions.

Iran's nuclear power capacity to be tripled: minister

on Sunday that the country plans to increase its nuclear power capacity from its current 1,000 megawatts to 3,000 MW in future.

In this regard, the construction of two new 1,000-megawatt nuclear power plants is underway in Bushehr, Reza Ardakanian said.

The minister lamented that lack of the required financial resources has slowed down the procedure of such constructions, however.

Almost 25 percent of the electricity produced in the last fiscal (ended in March 20, 2020) was generated from renewable sources, chief executive officer of Iran's Thermal Power Plants Holding Company said.

"An estimated 313 billion kilowatt-hours of power was produced in 2019, of which one-fourth or 80 billion kWh was with the help of steam units in combined cycle power plants, hydropower stations, the Bushehr Nuclear Power Plant and renewables," Mohsen Tarzatab was quoted as saying by Bargh News website.

Referring to the share of steam, he said it accounted for 42 billion kWh and helped save 11 billion cubic meters of natural gas in one year.

Rial gains after Trump's sickness hurts re-election chances

Iran's rial has strengthened against the US dollar in the unofficial market mainly on speculations that US President Donald Trump's sickness could hurt his re-election chances in the next month's elections.

Currency traders in downtown Tehran were of the idea that Trump's infection with the coronavirus and his poor performance in a first presidential debate held earlier this week had contributed to the rial's growth.

US dollar dipped to 286,000 against the rial later in the day, down nearly five percent compared to Friday when the Iranian currency hit a new record low.

According to reports, measures taken in recent days by the Central Bank of Iran (CBI), including removing a cap on trade in a secondary exchange market, had also played a role in the market.

Traders said the rial will continue to firm against other currencies over the next few days although some said Trump's discharge from hospital, expected on Monday, could reverse the trend.

However, experts believe the dollar could lose almost a third of its value against the rial immediately after a potential loss for Trump in the November 3 election.

An official price of 42,000 for the rial against the dollar is still used by the government to fund imports of staples and medicines. The price has not changed since early 2018 when the national currency began its fall on news of the United States would leave a nuclear deal with Iran and impose extensive sanctions on the country. Gold also fell sharply on Sunday with benchmark gold coin known as Bahar Azadi dropping to 135 million rials, down 10 percent compared to Saturday.

All flights of Iran-Turkey route cancelled: CAO

Iran Civil Aviation Organization (CAO) on Sunday announced that flights of all domestic airlines and Turkish Airlines from Islamic Republic of Iran to Turkey will be cancelled until further notice. Only a few days after the resumption of flights of Iranian airlines to Turkey, flights on this route were halted again, CAO added. In line with combating coronavirus pandemic, all flights of domestic airlines and Turkish Airlines from Iran to Turkey will be abolished until further notice, the announcement reiterated.

Presently, airlines of both sides can only do "Repatriation Flight" and only empty flight is done by airlines of the two countries in order to return Iranian and Turkish citizens due to the growing spread of COVID-19. Increasing prevalence of coronavirus disease and efforts to reduce adverse effects of the pandemic have been cited as the main reason behind cancelling the flights, CAO stated.

UAE, Saudi Arabia's cyber plots against Arab states revealed

Al Jazeera channel broadcasted a documentary which revealed that UAE and Saudi Arabia have used their resources to escalate tensions and promote lies on social networks against some Arab countries and Turkey.

Al-Jazeera channel broadcasted a documentary about some provocative moves of UAE and Saudi Arabia against some Arab countries which caused many controversies in social media, Alquds Alarabi reported.

The documentary revealed that UAE and Saudi Arabia used resources of their countries in order to promote lies, especially on social networks against a number of Arab countries and Turkey.

In this regard, Abu Dhabi has used all its resources to target Qatar, Turkey, Kuwait, Oman, Algeria, Jordan and etc. in cyberspace and social networks to create crises and tensions in these countries.

The documentary also showed that the UAE has launched a virtual project called "Arab Intelligence" to escalate tensions in some countries through spreading lies.

Some false news about the coup in Qatar has also been spread by some fake accounts in Riyadh and Abu Dhabi through sharing manipulated images and videos. The Al Jazeera documentary revealed that the UAE has used espionage programs such as Zionist-backed programs, to target Qatar and other Arab countries, including Morocco, Oman, Jordan, Mauritania, Sudan, and Algeria.

Not accepting election results may lead to violence in US: Analyst

The possibility of not accepting the election results by the current President of the US, may lead to conflict and violence in this country and however, America is in its most dangerous political turn. Philippe Willito said in an interview with IRNA on Monday that Trump and his wife have undergone medical treatment for contamination to Covid-19. He said that the US presidential race is underway pointing to the Conservatives' majority of US Supreme Court Justices, said that Trump is trying to send another person from Republican Party to the Supreme Court to ensure that the majority will vote for him. So, we will face a scenario where the loser of the election remains the President, so the situation will go to street fighting, he added. In response to the question about strong political and election tensions in the US, this analyst answered that Trump has announced that he may reject the election results and not hand over the White House, in the opposite point, Joe Biden says that security and military forces would step in and set him down. In the meantime, racist groups say they will go to the streets and renounce violence, he added and other parties and leftist groups are extremely concerned about the threats. Willito said that it's the most dangerous situation I have seen in all my life since the president of Eisenhower, I think violent clashes following elections will be likely to lead the republic but will not become a major crisis for the country.

Expert: Israel aiming Iran-Turkey tension in Karabakh conflict

Iranian professor in Tehran University and expert on Palestine issue said that the Israeli regime is aiming escalation of tension between Iran and Turkey in Karabakh conflict.

Speaking to IRNA, Hadi Borhani commented on Israeli footprint in Karabakh conflict, saying its aim is to follow up Zionism's ideology which establishing Jewish government in Palestine.

Israel will have no mercy on any country even the United States, he said.

When the Zionists felt threatened by USS Liberty, they bombarded the US navy technical research ship.

Relying on Israel is relying on mirage, Iranian professor reiterated.

They have taken different policies and have various interests, but, they are trying to pretend that position of Iran and Turkey is treacherous, malicious and intolerable.

They tend to make two governments lose their control and attack each other's positions of two countries are provoked and create hatred and animosity against each other. Elaborating on the impact of UAE and Bahrain compromise with the Israeli regime on the regional security and stability and also unity in the Islamic World, Borhani said normalization of ties by Abu Dhabi and Manama has dealt serious blow to Islamic countries and Palestinian stance. Normalization of ties will bring about dangerous consequences and indicate that the integrity in the Islamic World has been weakened, weakness of defense power vis-a-vis the most stubborn and vindictive enemy.

During Netanyahu's term, Israel has had all anti-Islam and anti-Arab characteristics and has taken the worst position against Palestine.

Normal ties with Israel means overlooking all Israeli aggression against Muslims and Arab people.

He said that accepting occupation of Palestine means to expel all Palestinians from their homeland.

The most important result of this compromise for Israel would be the fact that the more crimes and oppression are committed against Muslims, the more they will surrender.

He said that Israeli regime exaggerates normalization of ties with UAE and Bahrain when about 30 countries do not recognize Israel challenging international legitimacy of the Israeli occupying regime.

MP: End of arms embargo to help boost regional stability

An Iranian lawmaker says the expiration of the arms embargo on the Islamic Republic later in October will help push forward the efforts toward maintaining the regional stability.

"Iran always seeks to strengthen peace, stability and security in the region, and the expiration of the arms embargo will have a great impact in this regard," Yaghoob Rezazadeh, a member of the National Security and Foreign Policy Commission of the Parliament, told Mehr News on Monday.

He added that Iran has always had a "brotherly approach" toward the world countries, especially the regional states, noting that the ability to boost its defense might is a priority to help maintain peace in the region.

"Our country must be strong in terms of defense and military, because the more defensive power we have, the more we can create deterrence against the evil plans of the enemies."

"Westerners are seeking to spread Iranophobia, while they have imposed an arms embargo on Iran for years, and are selling their worn-out weapons to the Arab states of the Persian Gulf region under the pretext of ensuring their security."

Under the 2015 nuclear deal that Iran struck with six major powers - the United Kingdom, China, France, Germany, Russia, and the US - a five-year UN conventional arms embargo on Tehran is set to expire on October 18.

The US, which abandoned that deal in May 2018, has been making every effort to force the UN members to extend the embargo. However, its bid was rejected in September by the majority of UN Security Council members.

Iran offers plan to end conflict over Karabakh

Iranian Foreign Ministry Spokesman Saeed Khatibzadeh said that the country has prepared a plan to put an end to the decades-old conflict between Armenia and Azerbaijan over the Nagorno-Karabakh region.

Iran is closely watching the developments near its northwestern border and is in contact with both parties, Khatibzadeh said on Monday in his weekly press conference.

"From the day the conflict started, Iran told both parties that there will be no military solution to solve the decades-old dispute. Again while respecting the territorial integrity of Azerbaijan and the need to withdraw forces from occupied cities, we stress that military conflict should be halted swiftly for the start of comprehensive political dialogue."

Iran's reaffirms unquestionable sovereignty over trio islands

Iran has once again reaffirmed its sovereignty over three Persian Gulf islands, dismissing the UAE's "hackneyed" claims about them.

Foreign Ministry Spokesman Saeed Khatibzadeh rejected on Monday the UAE foreign minister's recent "groundless" claims over the Iranian islands of Abu Musa, the Greater Tunb, and the Lesser Tunb and reaffirmed the Islamic Republic's indubitable sovereignty over three Persian Gulf islands.

During his UNGA speech last week, UAE's Minister for Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation Sheikh Abdullah bin Zayed Al Nahyan claimed his country has legal rights regarding sovereignty over the three Persian Gulf islands.

Sheikh Abdullah also alleged that Iran has "occupied" the islands in violation of the UN Charter.

Khatibzadeh also warned the UAE of the danger of drowning with the Israeli regime, after Abu Dhabi signed a tie normalization agreement with Tel Aviv last month.

The Iranian diplomat urged the Abu Dhabi rulers to make up for such a wrong move before it is too late.

The UAE and Bahrain signed controversial normalization agreements with the Israeli regime at the White House on September 15, amid outrage across Palestine and the Muslim world.

Saudis, Zionists not entitled to address JCPOA

Khatibzadeh also referred to the recent claims by Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, who had accused Iran of violating its 2015 nuclear deal (JCPOA) commitments, saying, "Saudis and Israelis opposed the nuclear deal from the very beginning, so they hold no right to make any comment about it."

The spokesman also pointed to Saudi Arabia's "secret" nuclear activities, calling on the Riyadh regime to act within the frameworks of the NPT.

"We are closely watching the related developments and warn Riyadh to fulfill its commitments and allow the international and legal investigative procedures be carried out over its clandestine nuclear activities." He also urged the related international bodies to probe into the matter. Based on reports, Saudi Arabia has built a facility for the extraction of yellowcake from uranium ore near the remote town of al-Ula.

Iran Does Not Care about US Election Result: Spokesman

It does not matter for Iran who will win the upcoming presidential election in the US, Iran's Foreign Ministry spokesman said, noting that there is a clear path for Washington to reverse its hostile policies against Tehran.

"It is not important at all what is said inside the election campaigns in the US. Our criterion is the (UNSC) Resolution (2231) and the JCPOA," Saeed Khatibzadeh told Tasnim at a press conference on Monday, when asked about the reports that the election campaign of US Democratic candidate Joe Biden has cited a change in the timing of the JCPOA articles after the US' withdrawal from the deal.

Trump has pulled the US out of the JCPOA and has brazenly displayed his signature on the withdrawal order, the spokesman deplored. "It does not make much difference which party takes the power (in the US). If the US intends to return to the correct path, the road is clear."

Washington must admit to making a mistake, stop the economic war and terrorism against Iran, return to its JCPOA commitments, and make up for the damages caused by its withdrawal from the 2015 nuclear deal, the Iranian spokesman added.

In remarks in September, Iran's permanent representative and ambassador to the United Nations Majid Takht-Ravanchi said it does not matter to the Islamic Republic who wins the US presidential election as long as Washington has not shifted its unlawful policy of sanctions.

Situation at Iran-Azerbaijan Border Normal: MP

Normal conditions prevail in the border areas of Iran near the Republic of Azerbaijan, a lawmaker said.

Speaking to Tasnim on Monday, the spokesman for the Iranian Parliament's National Security and Foreign Policy Commission said he has visited the Bileh-Savar border crossing in the northwestern province of Ardebil to assess the situation amid the escalation of armed clashes between the Republic of Azerbaijan and Armenia.

The situation at Bileh-Savar border is normal and the travels through the land border are underway as usual, Abolfazl Amoei added.

He said a number of mortar shells fired by the warring sides in the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict have hit the Iranian soil and damaged a number of houses in rural areas.

On Saturday, Iranian Foreign Ministry Spokesperson Saeed Khatibzadeh called on Armenia and Azerbaijan to be careful not to violate Iran's border amid the outbreak of the new round of fighting.

His comments came after officials in Iran's northwestern province of East Azarbaijan reported that mortar shells fired by the warring sides in the latest round of fighting between Armenia and Azerbaijan have hit border rural areas in the province.

Walter Reed attending physician:

Trump's appearance before supporters endangered others

The attending physician at the Walter Reed National Military Medical Center believes Trump's brief appearance before his supporters gathered near the hospital endangered all the people who were with him in the vehicle.

Dr. James Phillips posted on Twitter that the black Suburban Trump was inside was "hermetically sealed against chemical attack", which, he says, posed a risk of contracting COVID-19 to every person inside the vehicle, the Sputnik reported.

"Every single person in the vehicle during that completely unnecessary Presidential 'drive-by' just now has to be quarantined for 14 days", Phillips said, calling his short trip "insanity".

He tweeted: That Presidential SUV is not only bulletproof but hermetically sealed against chemical attack. The risk of COVID-19 transmission inside is as high as it gets outside of medical procedures. The irresponsibility is astounding. My thoughts are with the Secret Service forced to play. Trump briefly left the Walter Reed hospital to greet his supporters on Sunday. His motorcade drove past a small crowd of his supporters and then returned back to the medical center. Trump waved from behind the closed window of the car and did not get out of the vehicle. He was wearing a face mask, just like all the other people inside the SUV.

In a video released on Twitter on Sunday, Trump said he was going to make "a little surprise visit", hinting at his planned appearance before supporters at Walter Reed. Earlier on Sunday, he also thanked his fans and supporters gathered outside the medical facility, tweeting that they "really love our Country." Trump arrived at the Walter Reed National Military Medical Center in Maryland on Friday, after announcing on Twitter that he and his wife Melania had tested positive for the coronavirus. Dr. Brian Garibaldi of Johns Hopkins University, in charge of the president's therapeutics, said on Sunday that Trump had responded well to the remdesivir antiviral treatment and that he could be allowed to return to the White House as early as Monday. Several people in Trump's campaign have tested positive in recent days. Trump's diagnosis has forced him to withdraw at least temporarily from the campaign, raising questions about its potential effects on the November 3 election.

As reported, the Democratic nominee Joe Biden leads US President Donald Trump by sizable margins among voters in Pennsylvania and Florida following Tuesday night's combative presidential debate.

Democrats, Republicans 2 edges of a blade against Resistance

The chairman of the security committee of the parliament's National Security and Foreign Policy Commission noted that US Democrats and Republicans are two edges of a pair of scissors in support of the extremist Zionist Regime. Ebrahim Azizi made the remarks in reaction to Joe Biden's recent election statement that if he wins the election, the United States will end its support for the war in Yemen. It is a false notion to think that the crisis of the region will be resolved if Democrats come to power, he said added, "Actually Democrats and Republicans are two edges of a pair of scissors in support of the extremist Zionist Regime; therefore, it's obvious that they won't take any steps against the Zionists Regime." Stating that different political parties in the US administration share the same ideology towards the Axis of Resistance, Azizi underlined, "However, they just adopt different approaches in order to remove the Axis of Resistance in West Asia for the sake of Zionist Regime." ICANA reported. Both ruling parties in the United States have one goal in the struggle against the freedom seeker nations of the world and non of them seeks to stabilize the region, he said and added, "Therefore the result of the US 2020 election will do no good in favor of the developments of West Asia."

Harness 'transformative potential' of urbanization for people and planet: UN Chief

United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres in his message on World Habitat Day, 5 October 2020, called for urgent action to provide low-income families and vulnerable populations with affordable housing with security of tenure and easy access to water, sanitation, transport, and other basic services.

Each year World Habitat Day focuses attention on the state of the world's towns and cities. This year's observance highlights the centrality of housing as a driver for sustainable urban development.

According to the United Nations Information Center (UNIC) in Tehran, the UN Secretary-General in his message said that access to clean water and sanitation, along with social distancing, are key responses to the pandemic. Yet in slums, it has proved difficult to implement these measures. The full text of his message reads:

Each year World Habitat Day focuses attention on the state of the world's towns and cities. This year's observance highlights the centrality of housing as a driver for sustainable urban development.

Currently, 1 billion people live in overcrowded settlements with inadequate housing. By 2030, that number will rise to 1.6 billion. Action is needed now to provide low-income families and vulnerable populations with affordable housing with security of tenure and easy access to water, sanitation, transport and other basic services. To meet global demand, more than 96,000 housing units will need to be completed every day – and they must be part of the green transition.

The urgency of improving living conditions has been brought to the fore by COVID-19, which has devastated the lives of millions in cities. Access to clean water and sanitation, along with social distancing, are key responses to the pandemic. Yet in slums, it has proved difficult to implement these measures. This means an increased risk of infection, not only within slums, but in whole cities, many of which are largely serviced by low-income informal sector workers living in informal settlements.

On World Habitat Day, in this crucial Decade of Action to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals, I call for heightened efforts to promote the partnerships, pro-poor policies, and regulations needed to improve housing in cities. As we strive to overcome the pandemic, address the fragilities and inequalities it has exposed, and combat climate change, now is the time to harness the transformative potential of urbanization for the benefit of people and the planet.

Fatah to Pompeo: 'Palestine Not A Banana Republic'

The Palestinian Fatah movement directed sharp criticism at US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo for his recent call to replace the Palestinian leadership. Munir Jaghoub, head of Fatah's Information Department in the Office of Mobilization and Organization, responded to Pompeo through a post on Facebook in which he questioned, "Mr. Pompeo, when will you realize that our people always choose their leadership and that Palestine, although it is a state under occupation, is not a banana republic?" "You have to realize that dignity, self-pride and confidence in the future is an authentic Palestinian commodity, just like olive oil, thyme and the Canaanite dress embroidered with love for the land," said the Fatah leader. Jaghoub reiterated the Palestinian rejection of all plans aimed at liquidating the Palestinian cause, stating, "We will not talk to anyone on the ground of the so-called deal of the century, and the only dialogue we will accept must be based on international legitimacy and aims to end the occupation and establish an independent Palestinian state with East Jerusalem al-Quds as its capital on the borders of 4 June, 1967." The Fatah official advised Pompeo "not to compromise the Palestinian right," adding, "Many foreign ministers and presidents came and went before you, but Palestine remained and its people maintained steadfastness in their homeland." In response to the US demand for changing the Palestinian leadership, Jaghoub said, "The Palestinian leadership remains because it derives its legitimacy from the trust of the people, and you, your president and your administration will leave soon by the decision of the American people." Pompeo, whose country proposed the so-called deal of the century and orchestrated the recent Emirati and Bahraini normalization agreements with Israel, which the Palestinian leadership firmly condemned, recently argued that the Palestinians need to choose a leadership willing to conduct a "dialogue for peace".
